

The 12th International Symposium on Stabilization, Safety and Security (SSS 2010) will be held in New York City during September 20-22, 2010. With funding from US National Science Foundation, a limited number of travel scholarships will be made available to the US student participants (i.e. students currently studying at a US university) of this conference.

To apply for this scholarship, please submit an application by email to Sukumar Ghosh (sukumar-ghosh@uiowa.edu) with the following information:

1. Your CV
2. A research statement
3. A statement about the benefits to be accrued from your participation in SSS 2010
4. An endorsement from your advisor
5. An estimate of your travel expenses
6. Financial commitment from your advisor / institution

The amount of travel support will be based on the need as well as the availability of funds. Women and minority applicants are especially encouraged to apply, and such applicants should identify themselves in the application. A very limited number of scholarships may be available to US postdoctoral candidates without adequate institutional support.

The deadline for submitting this application is August 29, 2010. The results will be notified by September 1, 2010
